A Message from the President

The last two months of 2007 have brought some interesting news to Texas chess. In November, ten Texan scholastic players participated in the World Youth Championship tournament, held near Antalya, Turkey. Sarah Chiang of Dallas won the silver in Girls' Under 10 with 8.5 out of 11. Her little brother Jonathan also had a fine result of 8-3 in Boys' Under 8 for sixth place.

Earlier this month, FIDE's website indicated what Texans have known for a very long time: Joe Bradford knows how the pieces move. He's now been awarded the IM title.

The National Scholastic K-12 Grade and Collegiate Championships were held in Houston, with Texas teams winning in the 2nd, 6th, 10th, and 12th grades and in the collegiate division and Vincent Zhang of Houston winning the first place trophy in 6th grade..

Last, and certainly not least, on the final weekend of the year (gives you an idea how long I've been putting off writing a column), UT Dallas defended its title in the 2007 Pan American games in Miami, holding off the University of Maryland-Baltimore County yet again. This concludes a stellar year for UTD – victories in the Final Four, the Transatlantic Challenge (vs. the University of Belgrade) and even the U.S. Chess League, where the Dallas Destiny, comprised of UTD students, beat out the Boston Blitz in the final match.

As I write this message, it's literally hours until the end of 2007. Some of you may be making your New Year's Resolutions. Since I've only kept one New Year's resolution in my life (not to drink caffeinated beverages in 1990), I've abandoned them and instead make goals. One of my goals is for the return of a TCA major to Austin in 2008, hopefully the State Championship and State Amateur Championship over Memorial Day. Another is to have at least 150 participants at both the State Championship and the Southwest Open. A third is to make sure that each TCA region is represented by a director and a scholastic committee representative. I think this goal is going to be met within the first few weeks, or even days, of 2008. For me, personally, I've added my goal to play 30 or more rated games of chess this year, to get my rating back over 2000 (again), and to spend some time volunteering for chess in my community. For me, this will probably mean playing some simulms at area elementary schools.

I'd like to hear your thoughts about 2008 as well. I feel like I have not been as responsive to TCA needs these past few months as I would like, and as always, invite you to contact me to let me know ways I can improve the organization. Please contact me at msimpson@gmail.com. Until I hear from you, have a Happy New Year.

Michael M. Simpson
TCA President

Texas Grade & Collegiate Championships

The 11th Annual Texas Grade and Collegiate Championships were held Nov. 17-18 in The Woodlands (near Houston). Total attendance was 505, not counting side events. Here are the winners, co-champions if tied:

- K Elliot Glatman
- 1 Alekya Vejendla
William Cooper, Jr.
Louis Fernandes
- 2 Hannah Liu
Alex Liu
- 3 Edward Cen
- 4 Akshay Malhotra
- 5 Becky Huang
- 6 Derek Chang
Jeffery Hung
- 7 Jason Jia
- 8 Mitchell Powell
- 9 Alexander Balkum
- 10 William Ong
Daniel Hung
- 11 Abhishek Mallela
Kart Ramachandran
Christian Saco
- 12 Artur Safin
- C Francisco Guadalupe II

Francisco Guadalupe won the Collegiate with 5-1 ahead of Ali Morshedi, Jeffrey DeJesus and Nelson Lopez, who finished with 4.5.

As clear winner in the 12th grade, Arthur Safin, a senior at Lamar High School in Houston, won a four-year scholarship to the University of Texas at Dallas.

Luis Salinas and the Dallas Chess Club organized the event. Franc Guadalupe was the chief TD.

6th Annual UTD Grandmaster Invitational

IM Kuljasevic ties with Ramirez, makes GM norm. Robson clinches IM title.

Nankai University coach Fushan Zhu, about to make the first move for GM Zviad Izoria. vs. IM Jacek Stopa
Background: GM Magesh Panchanathan vs. IM Davorin Kuljasevic. Right: NU assistant coach WGM Chunhong Ning

IM Davorin Kuljasevic of Croatia made a GM norm, tying for first with his UTD teammate GM Alejandro Ramirez of Costa Rica in this year's UTD Grandmaster Invitational. Both scored 7.5 out of 11 in the twelve-player round robin, which included four GMs and six IMs.

The event, sponsored by the University of Texas at Dallas, was held Dec. 6-14 at the First Bank of Canyon Creek in Richardson. Luis Salinas organized and directed.

Four non-UTD players competed: GM Zviad Izoria from the Republic of Georgia, currently the fourth-rated player in USCF; two players from Nankai University in China, GM Zhao Jun and WGM Hunchong Ning; and the youngest player, FM Ray Robson, 13, from Florida.

UTD supplied two grandmasters, Ramirez and Panchanathan, whose exploits in this state are well known. UTD also fielded five IMs: Drasko Boskovic, Davorin Kuljasevic, John Bartholomew, Salvijus Bercys and Jacek Stopa; plus former team captain and graduate Dmitry Schneider.

For UTD this event ends a year of triumphs including first place in the Final Four and an 11-5 win over the University of Belgrade at the Transatlantic Cup. Most recently, in the U.S. Chess League's third season the Dallas Destiny (with Boskovic, Kuljasevic and Stopa) defeated the Boston Blitz to take first. Kuljasevic described the excitement: "When Christiansen resigned in the last blitz match we were all jumping and celebrating like we won the lottery."

Kuljasevic credits his win in the Invitational to consistency and doing his opening homework, reports Jennifer Shahade in Chess Life Online.

"Round robins require much more mental and psychological stability compared to open tournaments I was also fortunate that I won my two White games against Robson and Jun fairly easily because they jumped right into my home preparation."

He went to his home town of Zagreb, Croatia for the holidays.

The big story for much of the tournament was Ray Robson, the 13-year-old phenom from Florida who made his third and final IM norm. He started like a house on fire with four straight wins, against IM Dmitri Schneider, GM Magesh Panchanathan (who started wearing a red hat like Ray's in tribute!), GM Jun Zhao and IM Drasko Boskovic.

After six rounds Ray had already clinched the IM Norm of 4.5 points and was tied for the lead with the eventual winners. Even after limping to the finish line with half a point from the final four rounds, he placed fourth out of twelve strong players.

Alexey Root: How old is Ray?

Gary Robson: He turned 13 on October 25th.

AR: I know Ray is home-schooled. What is his day like back home, and how do you fit in his travels for chess?

GR: At home Ray studies chess 3-5 hours a day. He studies Mandarin with his mom, Yee-chen. Ray loves all sports, particularly ping-pong, basketball, soccer, and he's just starting tennis. He attended public school for kindergarten, then a public school for the gifted in first grade, then from grades 2-5 he was at a private Montessori school. We started homeschooling in grade 6, and he's in 7th grade now. My work as a professor at the college of education (applied linguistics) at St. Petersburg College is flexible. For example, I'm giving my final online while I'm here with Ray. His mom was with him Thursday and Friday, and returned to Florida today to finish her semester as a public school teacher. I got here yesterday (Saturday) and will stay with Ray until the tournament ends this coming Saturday.

AR: Tell me your impression of Ray's performance in rounds 1-4.

GR: Ray is doing well, 4-0 after playing 2 GMs and 2 IMs. By my calculations, if he scores one more half-point before round nine he will have his third and final IM norm. His first IM norm was in Chicago in October at the 6th North American FIDE Invitational (Oct. 28-Nov.3, 2007, Chicago), and his second IM norm was in Turkey at the World Youth (Nov.17-29, 2007) He only had 4-5 days after returning from Turkey before coming to Texas for the UTD GM Invitational. It's nice to see someone succeed, especially if he's your son. He really loves chess!

AR: How does Ray prepare for the games here?

GR: Ray works on his own; his last GM instruction was back in June. The nearest GM to us geographically is Julio Beccera in Miami, which is six hours away. So working in person with a GM isn't possible. Ray looks over the games of his next opponent, searching for where he might play differently from what their previous opponents played. Most of the games at this tournament last 4-5 hours, then everyone carools from the playing site in downtown Richardson back to the UT-Dallas campus. We are fortunate to have been given an apartment on the campus to use for free for the duration of the tournament. Also, I want to emphasize that the UTD players have been very welcoming to Ray

FM John Jacobs makes the move for IM Salvijus Bercys vs. GM Alejandro Ramirez; IM John Bartholemew looks on.

Final Standings

- 1-2. IM Davorin Kuljasevic and GM Alejandro Ramirez -7.5/11
3. GM Zviad Izoria - 7
4. FM Ray Robson - 6
- 5-6. IM John Bartholemew and IM Jacek Stopa - 5.5
- 7-8. GM Jun Zhao and IM Dmitri Schneider - 5
- 9-10. IM Salvijus Bercys and IM Drasko Boskovic - 4.5
- 11-12. GM Magesh Panchanathan and WGM Chunhong Ning- 4

5.Bg5 h6 6.Bh4

This is currently the most popular line of Slav that leads to sharp and unbalanced positions, where a single mistake can decide the game. Needless to say, it requires a lot of home preparation.

6...dxc4 7.e4 g5 8.Bg3 b5 9.Be2 Bb7 10.0-0

The latest fashion. 10.h4 g4 11. Ne5 is a different approach.

10...Nbd7 11.Ne5 Bg7

11...h5 is a reasonable alternative.

13.Bd6 a6 [13...e5!?] 14.a4

14.e5!? as played in Bartholomew-Robson in this tournament (round 8) is worth considering.

The recent world championship saw 14.Bh5 Bf8 15.Bxf8 Rxf8 16.e5 Qb6 17.b3 0-0-0 18.bxc4 Nxe5 19.c5 Qa5 20.Ne4 Qb4 21.Nd6+ Rxd6 22.cxd6 Nd7 23.a4 Qxd6 24. 14...e5 15.Bg4

The sharpest possibility, which I've analyzed extensively before the tournament. 15.d5 is another option. [15.d5 c5 16.b4 cxb4 17.Bxb4 a5 18. Bd6 b4 19.Nb5 Rc8 20.Bxc4 Rxc4 21.Re1 Rxc1 22.Qxc1 Qb6 23.Nc7+ Kd8 24.Nb5 Ke8= Izoria-Erenburg, Khanty-Mansiysk rapid 2005]

15...exd4 16.e5

Things are starting to get interesting!

16...c5

The best move. 16...dxc3 doesn't work because of 17.e6 Ne5 (or 17...Nf6 18.Bh5 Nxf5 19.Qxh5 Qf6 20.exf7+ Kd8 21.Rad1 and Black won't be able to survive this.) 18.e7 Qxe7 19.Bxe7 Kxe7 (if 19...cxb2 then 20.Qd6!) 20.bxc3 with advantage for White; The attempt to get rid of the bishop 16...Nxe5 fails to 17.Qxd4! when 17...Nf3+ doesn't work in the view of 18.gxf3 Bxd4 19.Rfe1+ and Black has to give up his queen to protect the king.

17.Bf3

A very unpleasant move, after which my opponent sank into thought for more than one hour! Black is hard pressed to find a way to get rid of the bishop on d6 and ...

17...Bxf3

... he fails. The only move is 17...Nxe5! 18.Bxb7 Qxd6 19.Bxa8 0-0 when Black is down a rook, but he has a massive pawn center that compensates for his material deficit. Before the game, I knew that there would be very small chance that my opponent would find this over the board, so I wasn't surprised he went for 17... Bxf3.

18.Qxf3 Nxe5

18...h5 19.Nd5 Ra7 20.Rfel Nf8 21.Bxc5 Rd7 22.Bxf8+-.

19.Qd5!

The key move, after which Black's position is hopeless. His king is just too weak.

19...dxc3 20.Rfe1 cxb2 21.Rad1

21.Qc6+ looks tempting but after 21...Qd7 22.Qxa8+ Qd8 White doesn't have more than a perpetual.

21...b1Q 22.Rxb1 Rc8

22...Ra7 looks a bit better, but after the simple 23.Rxe5+ Bxe5 24. Qxe5+ Kd7 25.Bxc5 it's just over. [22...Qc8 23.axb5+-]

23.axb5 axb5 24.Rbd1

After this, Black cannot avoid heavy material losses.

24...Qd7 25.Rxe5+ Bxe5 26.Qxe5+ Qe6 27.Qxh8+ Kd7 28.Bxc5+ Kc6 29.Qd4 Re8 30.Bb4 Qe4 and Black resigned.

This is brand new theory that was introduced (in the big time, at least) by GM Magnus Carlsen in the 2007 World Cup. White's winning percentage in NICBase is a paltry 26.9% out of 13 games, with one win, seven losses and five draws!

Previously Black has tried 10...c6, 10...Nd7, 10...Re8 and 10...Bb7 as alternative to Chigorin's 10...c5.

Davorin Kuljasevic 2464

UTD GM Invitational 2007 (10)

1.e4 e5 2.b3

During the tournament I got a reputation as a theoretical expert, so it's no wonder that Zviad resorted to this unusual line. However, I was aware that it used to be a dangerous weapon of his countryman Gelashvili, so he was probably familiar with some of his ideas.

2...d6 3.Bb2 Nf6

I think Black should play this move as soon as possible in order to put the pressure on the e4 pawn.

4.Bb5+ Nbd7 5.d3 g6 6.f4 Bg7
7.Bxd7+ Bxd7 8.Nf3 0-0 9.0-0 b5

In my opinion, Black has achieved a favorable Closed Sicilian type of position. Naturally, I wanted to expand on the queenside. 10.c4 bxc4 Opening the b-file to create some counterplay.

11.bxc4 Qa5 12.Bc3 Qa4

I was trying to create as much counterplay on the queenside as possible.

13.Qc1 Rab8 14.Nbd2 Ne8 15.Bxg7 Nxb7 16.Nb1

I thought 16.f5 was not very dangerous because of 16...gxf5 17.Nh4 fxe4 18.Nxe4 f5 16...f5!

Trying to create some counterplay in the center as well.

17.Nc3 Qa5 18.g3 Bc6 19.Rf2

In the case of 19.Nd5 Bxd5 20.exd5 Black has no problems after 20...e6.

19...Rb7 20.Nd2

A logical attempt to close the b-file.

20...Rfb8 21.Nb3 Qb4 22.Rc2?!

22.Rb1 looks better to me. Both 22...fxe4 (and 22...Ne6) 23.Nxe4 Nf5 24.g4 Nd4 25.f5 gxf5 26.gxf5 Kh8 should provide Black with enough counterplay.

22...a5?!

A serious inaccuracy. More dangerous was 22...fxe4 23.Nxe4 Nf5 (or 23...a5)
23.Nd5

White goes for a forced sequence. In the case of 23.Rb1 a4 24.Nd2 Qa5 25.Rxb7 Rxb7 Black would still retain a small initiative.
23...Bxd5 24.cxd5 a4 25.Rc4 Qb5 26.Nd2 e6 27.dxe6 Nxe6 28.Nf3 Qb1! 29.Rc2

The only move. After 29.Rxb1 Rxb1 White doesn't have a good way to defend the a-pawn.

29...a3 30.Kf2 Qxc2+ 31.Qxc2 Rb2 32.Rc1 fxe4?

A big mistake. I thought the knight endgame would be winning so I went straight into it, without considering other possibilities.

32... c4! was a much better attempt to win. White might be able to hold, but it wouldn't be easy.

33.dxe4 Rxc2+ 34.Rxc2 Rb2 35. Rxb2 axb2 36.Nd2 c4 37.Nb1 Nc5 38.Ke3 Na4 39.Kd2 Kf7 40.Kc2 Ke6 41.Na3

I underestimated White's counterplay with Na3-b5-d4.

41...c3

41...d5 doesn't help because of 42.e5 followed by Nb5.

42.Nb5 Kd7 43.f5 g5 44.g4 h6 45. h3 Ke7 46. Na3 Kd7 47.Nb5 Ke7 48. Na3 Kd7 ½-½

Ten from Texas attend World Youth Championships

The US fielded 33 players in the 2007 World Youth Championships, held Nov. 17-29 in Antalya, Turkey. Two on our team won medals: In U12 boys, Daniel Naroditsky of California won the gold medal and an FM title with 9.5/11; and our own Sarah Chiang of Dallas won the silver in U10 girls. Texas sent ten players in all.

The US coaching staff included Armen Ambartsoumian, Joel Benjamin, John Fedorowicz, Aviv Friedman, Dmitry Gurevich, Michael Khodarkovsky and Sergey Kudrin.

GM Benjamin had this to say:

"I would have to cite 2007 as our best performance in a World Youth. The historic gold and silver medals naturally grab most of the attention, but let's not forget the depth of our success, with several players scoring 8/11 and making the top ten (little brother Jonathan Chiang, 6th in Boys U8, Simone Liao, 6th in Girls U8, Brian Luo 7th in Boys' U10, and Ray Robson, 7th in Boys' U14)."

My trip to the 2007 World Youth Championships

by Dachey Lin

11/16

Flight to Turkey

Today I flew to Frankfurt, Germany. I saw Jarod, Jonathan, Sarah, and Courtney. My whole family went with me and I had fun. There were games on the airplane's computer, so I wasn't bored. When we got to Frankfurt, Germany we played bug-house until Sarah wanted to play normal chess. We left when it was time to board on an airplane to Istanbul, Turkey. After we went to Istanbul we hurried on our trip to Antalya, Turkey. On my trip to Antalya I slept. When I woke up I ate something and then threw up. My mom had to clean me up, but I still felt tired. So, I tried to do Sudoku. But, Sudoku was boring, so I asked for my word search book. When it was time to get off the airplane, we went on a bus and to our hotel.

Opening Ceremony

The opening ceremony started at night. I was bored because I had nothing to do. When the person on the stage started to talk, I did not understand what language he was speaking. I had not eaten dinner so I was hungry and had to go out. I missed half of the speech, but when I came back, I saw people dancing traditional Turkish folk dance on stage; it was awesome. Many people came from different countries to play in this tournament; they all dressed differently and each looked nice in their own way.

11/18

Round 1

Today I played against a very strong player from Azerbaijan in Round 1. His name is Abilov, Matin. I was on board 7. In the beginning, we were equal. I tried to beat him, but couldn't do it. In the middle game, I blundered my queen because I took a poisoned knight and didn't see a bishop pin. After that, I started playing better by activating all my pieces, and made him think longer and longer. I became bored so that I went over to check on how Jarod Patamat was doing. In the endgame, I was winning because I had a passed pawn that almost turned into a queen, but his queen checks stopped it. I was trying to hide my king, but he made a mistake and that enabled me to hide my king from a queen check and move my pawn. Then he tried to block my pawn with his queen, but my other pawn moved up and made his queen go away so I could promote my queen and that made him resign. That's the end of the game.

Sarah Chiang, 2nd Girls' U10

11/19 Round 2

Today I played against a very strong player from India in Round 2. His name is Shahi, Harshal and his FIDE rating was 1708. I was on board 3. In the beginning, we were equal, but I thought I was winning because the square on b3 was empty and I was controlling it. In the middle, I was tired and had to go to the restroom. I felt very good after coming back. I was trying to win quickly, but he kept defending so that I could not attack. In the endgame, I sacrificed a pawn and moved my king to where the pawn was. At the end of the endgame, I thought I was losing because I was losing by three pawns. However, he had to give away a free pawn and a bishop for my pawn so that we were equal again. I thought we would have ended up with a draw, but he used up all his time so that I was lucky to win the game on time.

11/20 Round 3

In Round 3 I played a good player from Iran named Asgharzadech Mohammad Reza. In the opening I played very badly and lost a pawn. I felt better in the middle game after he blundered two pawns so that I was up a pawn. I was trying to win quickly by using my bishop to attack his only pawn on the king side that was on h7, but he defended against my attack by stopping my bishops and passed pawns. Then he made me trade off my powerful pieces and let me have a free pawn. In the endgame I took a poison pawn and lost a knight, but he made a very bad move and allowed my pawn to advance to f7. He resigned because I was forking his knight and rook.

11/21 Round 4

Before round 4, I didn't rest well because my sister cried for 2 hours in the midnight. I also had a tantrum problem before the game due to the lack of sleep. When I went inside, I felt tired and played badly. My opponent is Sevgi Volkan from Turkey. I blundered a whole minor piece and felt very bad. And, in the middlegame I blundered another minor piece and felt very unhappy. In the endgame he had to give away a knight because he touched it, and it didn't have a good place to go to. I was still losing by a minor piece and felt very grumpy. At the end I was trying to stalemate myself, but he found a checkmate and didn't care about taking my free pawn.

11/22 Rounds 5 and 6

Today I had 2 rounds.

In Round 5 I played against Costachi, Milhnea from Romania. I was trying to do what my chess teacher Babakuli Annakov asked the US team coach Dmitry Gurevich to show me yesterday. It worked, and I was very happy. In the middlegame I won a pawn by checking his king. When he blocked my check with his pawn, I took it with a knight. It was a bishop endgame. I was trying to get him to lose, but it was hard. I was still a pawn up and then I found a way to open the boring position with a bishop and pawns. I made my pawn turn into a queen and checkmated him. It was a hard game.

In Round 6 I played against Jonathan Chiang from our US team. I won this game because he missed a queen mate. We are good friends and see each other often at Dallas Chess Club. No hard feelings.

11/23 Trip to Aspendos

It is a free day today. We joined a tour to Aspendos and Perge. During our bus ride to Aspendos, I could look out the window and see the Mediterranean Sea and the beautiful mountain. It was fun at the Aspendos. The Aspendos was an ancient theater that had 18,000 seats. I climbed up all the steps leading up to the top of the theatre. I got to take a picture with a person who dressed up as an ancient Roman soldier. After leaving Aspendos, we went to a traditional Turkish restaurant. The food was great. After we finished the meal and got out of the restaurant, I was given an Evil's Eye pin and a clay cup as gifts by a Turkish artist. Before we went to Perge, we visited another ancient theatre ruins, it was way bigger than Aspendos. At Perge, there was an ancient Roman city surrounded by double walls. The outside wall is rectangular and the inner oval. The Romans used the double walls to trap the enemy. Inside the city, there were two watch towers, the guards watch the enemy from them. We also saw an ancient Apollo temple and an ancient bathing place. The bathing place consists of three rooms. The first room is the Hot Room, inside it there was a double-layered floor. Hot water ran between the double layers of the floor to keep the floor warm. Before the guests entered the Hot Room, some slaves would help clean their hands and feet for hygiene purpose. After they came out of the Hot Room, they entered the Shock Room where the water was cold. The final room is called the Best Room where they had food and wine, played games, and watched beautiful girls dancing. After visiting the bathing place, we went to the gym. It was used to train the Roman soldiers. They chose pale green color for the walls inside the gym room because they thought it would make the soldiers feel calm and confident. After we exited the gym room, we went to a place where there were many pillars. I ran around and played there. It was amazing that all the buildings were built with marbles of different colors. Turkey has the second best quality marble in the world, just next to Italian marble. On the way back, we saw something amazing: The Turkish people build escalators on the sidewalk for people to get on to the bridges above the roads. The escalators are the same kind as we can see in US department stores. It was an exciting trip for me.

Round 7

Today I was playing against a very strong player from Russia; his name is Konstantin Savenkov. I lost to him because I was tired. My legs were aching from yesterday's trip to Aspendos because I ran around and climbed up and down too much. In the opening I was playing very well and slightly winning. However, in the middlegame I thought my queen was well positioned, but it was later trapped. I lost a queen for a bishop and knight. I thought everything would have ended up like round 1, but it didn't. I also lost two pawns in the endgame. He got a free bishop and then gave up his queen for promoting a pawn to a queen. I had to use my knight and pawns to defend my king, but then I had to give up a knight and my king was checkmated. This game had a sad ending for me.

Round 8

Today my opponent is Gubaydullin, Karim from Russia. He was a very good player. Well, all the players from the Russian team are very strong. This time I tried to be as careful as I can. I played really slow and tried not to sacrifice my queen too early by developing my knights and bishops early to control the center. In the beginning, I played really good and surprised him, that made him think very long. In the middlegame, I shocked him with a very unusual move, i.e. "7. ... g5", and got a free pawn. In the endgame, I gave away my rook and got a bishop and a knight in exchange, now I had two bishops against his only rook. He pinned one of my bishops and won it. However, I had two passed pawns, he had to give away one rook for a passed pawn that was promoted to a queen, but my other passed pawn took his rook and turned into a queen. That's when he resigned. After a two-hour battle, I eventually won. It was hard, but I am happy because I finally won someone from a Russian team.

11/26

Round 9

Today my opponent was Milan Zajic from Serbia. Amazingly he had not lost even one game before Round 9. He had had four wins and four draws. I planned to defeat him by being extra careful and always keeping in mind that he might sacrifice some pieces to have a draw against me. In the opening, I played really well; it made him think long and hard. In the middlegame, he played really well and was one pawn up. After four hours of battle I tried very hard not to be careless, but unfortunately still blundered in the endgame, fell into a trap, and lost.

Round 10

Today I played against Nikita Klepikov from Russia. I knew he was a very good player because he beat three FEDI rated players. I tried to be very careful and tried not to blunder anything. In the beginning, we were equal. I was so careful that I didn't try to attack quickly just like in the game against the Russian player Gubaydullin. In the middlegame, we were still equal but somehow I got a pawn up by capturing his pawns on d4 with my pawn, c2 and b3 with my queen while he used his knight to capture the pawns on d4 and f5 with his knight. He could have taken the pawn on h6 because it was check and then return the knight to f5. In the endgame, I lost a pawn so we were equal. It looked like it was almost going to be a draw, but first I wanted to see if I could win. He blundered two pawns and then gave his knight for a pawn. I was very happy that I won.

11/28

Round 11 and Closing Ceremony

Today I played against the invited player from India, G. V., Revanth Reddy. In the beginning, I did not recognize the opening. I went on and didn't care even if I shouldn't have made the moves I did make. In the middlegame, I played badly and was losing. I tried to get a bishop and knight for a rook, but he blundered and had to give back the exchange.

Zhang, Chang tie for 6th grade championship

Vincent Zhang of Houston tied with Derek Chang of Austin and Robert Perez of Florida for top honors in the 6th grade division of the National Scholastic K-12/Collegiate Championships, held Dec. 7-9 in Houston. All had 6-1 scores, with the first place trophy going to Vincent on tiebreaks. His sister Victoria also scored well, with 5-2. The Zhangs were on the T.H. Rogers Elementary national K-5 championship team last spring.

1.d4 d5 2.c4 e6 3.Nc3 Nf6 4.Bg5 Nbd7 I have played Queen's gambit for a long time now and have seen the Cambridge Springs often. (My sister plays it.) 5.cxd5 exd5 6.e3 not [6.Nxd5 where 6...Nxd5 7.Bxd8 Bb4+ 8.Qd2 Bxd2+ 9.Kxd2 Kxd8 wins black a piece] 6...c6 7.Bd3 Be7 8.Nge2 This is a variation I've played for quite some time now, where White strives to push e4 and get a massive center. 8...0-0 9.Qc2 h6 10.Bh4 c5 11.b3 to stop c4 11...b6 12.0-0 Bb7 I have reached many similar positions to this, and mainly my opponents play Ne4 where I am forced to give up my bishop. 13.f3 This is a normal pawn push in my variation. It stops Black from trading bishops, and supports e4. 13...Rc8 14.Qd2 This stops the pin along the c-file and any tactics he might have. 14...Re8 15.Bf2 This is where the bishop belongs in this variation-supporting the e3 and d4 pawns. At the moment it is blocked in, but it will be strong along the h2-a7 diagonal after White plays e4. 15...Bf8 16.Rac1 cxd4 this is bad for

Vincent Zhang

Black's pawn structure – his d-pawn is now isolated. Usually Black achieves counter-play with Ne4, but this is impossible because of the White pawn on f3. 17.Nxd4 Bb4 18.Qb2 Qe7 19.Nb1 Better for me is 19.Ncb5 Ne5 20.Bf5 Rxc1 21.Rxc1 where I have complete control over the c-file, and my rook is poised to go to the 7th rank. 19...Ne5 20.Bb5 Red8 21.a3 Bc5 I can't play b4 here because his knight gets the wonderful c4 outpost. 22.Nf5 Qe6 23.Nd4 I repeated this position to see if he would take on d4, giving up the bishop pair. 23...Qe7 24.Rfe1 "overprotecting" the pawn in case I want to move my bishop 24...a6 25.Bf1 This is the safest square for the bishop where it is "out of the way" 25...b5 26.Nf5 Qe6 27.Nd4 again seeing if he takes, although this time taking would be a horrible blunder because of the pin on the e-file 27...Qe7 28.Bg3 Threatening Nf5 Qe6 Qxe5. 28...Ng6 29.b4 Now that the knight can't get to c4 easily, I play b4 so that I can move my passive knight. 29...Bb6 30.Nd2 Rxc1 31.Qxc1 Ne5 He wants to get his knight to the c4 outpost. 32.N2b3 I am going to use my knights to limit his queen to the number of squares it can move 32...Ne4 33.Nf5 Qe6 34.Nbd4 Qd7 35.Bh4 This forces black to give up the bishop pair 35...Bxd4 36.Nxd4 g5 37.Bf2 Rc8 38.Bxc4 I decided to take mainly because the knight was superior to my bishop sitting on f1. 38...bxc4 39.Qc3 Blocking the pawn from advancing and eye the a1-h8 diagonal. 39...Ne8 40.Bg3 Time to get my bishop active. This also stops his knight from going to d6 where I can take it and give him a bad bishop. 40...f6 41.e4 Finally I play e4 to support Nf5. This also helps me open the e-file. 41...dxe4 42.fxe4 h5 43.e5 I was planning to play e6 and tie him down. 43...h4 44.Bf2 Qd5 45.Qf3 I planned to trade queens and make some problems for him with my knight and pawn. 45...c3 46.Qxd5+ Bxd5 47.Nf5 Kf8? better was Kf7. This allows me to play Bc5 with tempo. 48.Bc5+ Kf7 49.Nd6+ Nxd6 50.exd6 Be6? This move completely blunders a pawn. 51.Rc1 a5 52.Rxc3 axb4 53.Bxb4 I should have taken with my a-pawn. This allows him to get a opposite bishop endgame, which are known to be drawish. I thought that after 53.axb4 he could get counterplay with Ra8. 53...Rxc3 54.Bxc3 Bb3?? This is a horrible blunder by him. I can just take his pawns now. 55.d7 Ke7 56.Bxf6+ If Kxf6 then d8=Q. 56...Kxd7 57.Bxg5 h3 he tries to mess up my pawn structure to make it easier for him to defend. Unfortunately for him, he loses either way. 58.gxh3 Kc6 59.h4 Bf7 60.Kf2 Kb5 He uses his bishop to stop one side, while his king stops the other. 61.Kg3 Bh5 Stopping Kg4. 62.Kf4 Ka4 63.Be7 Kb3 64.Kg5 Bf7 65.h5 Bg8 66.Kg6 Bd5 67.h6 Be4+ 68.Kg7 Ka4 69.h7 Bxh7 70.Kxh7

My opponent resigned. 1-0

24.g4 fvg3 25.hvg3 Qd7 26.Bf1 Qe8 27.Kg1 Nh5 28.Ne2 Nd7

Also attractive is 28...g4, which Black gets around to later. The text allows 29.Bh3!, exchanging a weak bishop for a strong one: 29...Ndf6 30.Qxc8 Qxc8 31.g4!, effectively sealing off the kingside.

29.Qc2 Bd8 30.Rea1 Bb6+ 31.Be3 Bxe3+ 32.Rxe3 Ndf6 33.Rc1 g4! 34.f4 exf4 35.gxf4 g3 36.Nc4 Qd8!

This looks like the King's Indian positions that Kasparov would win 90% of the time. Distressing tactics loom on the a7-g1 diagonal.

Now on 37.Bg2 b5 38.Nb2 Ng4 with a strong attack, or 38.Nxd6!? Qxd6 39.e5 Qb6 40.Qb3 Ng4 41.d6+ Rf7! (41...Be6 42.Qxe6+ Kh8 43. Rc8+ Rxc8 44.Qxc8+ Rg8 45.Qc5∞) 42.Bxa8 Be6! 43.Qa3 Qxe3+ and White's pawns are kept at bay.

37.f5 Ng4

37...b5!? requires accurate defense: 38.Nb2 39.Qb6 Ng4 30.Qc6! Qxc6 31.dxc6 Nxe3 32.Nxe3 followed by Nc3 getting the b5 pawn. White is amply compensated for the exchange, and his queenside pawns seem a greater threat than Black's on the kingside.

4.f4 Nb8? [4...d5]

On the Web, Chessville covers this in a guide to unorthodox openings by Clyde Nakamura at chessville.com/UCO/CN/index.htm: "The opening known as The Zaire can be played from both the White side or the Black side. Basically to play the Zaire you move both your knights out and move both of them back to their original squares. You can move one knight out and retreat it and then move the other knight out also retreat it or you can move both knights out and retreat each knight one at a time. You are actually spotting your opponent four moves. Some players are actually insulted if you play the Zaire against them." (For the same reason, Warren Harper used to ask permission to play 1.h4!)

Reportedly one Class A player quit chess after losing to the Zaire in a tournament.

Ken Smith Memorial comes to Austin

UTB coach GM Gilberto Hernandez spectates as Langer and Bachmann begin in Round 4

The 7th Annual Ken Smith Memorial was held Nov. 24-25 in Austin at the Marriott Airport South. There were 117 players competing in six sections, plus an additional 60 in the scholastic side events.

GM Axel Bachmann, 18, a UT-Brownsville student from Paraguay, won the Open (29 players) with a 5-0 score. He was in some danger in round 4, when FM Michael Langer won material in an opening combination, but Bachmann held on to turn the game around. British expat NM Steve Dishman tied for second with WIM Luciana Morales, Arthur Macaspac and Alexander Balkum.

Madhumitha Venkataraman and Brett Hendrick tied for first place in the K-12 championship with 4-1. Kevin Li won the U1000 section.

A total of $4,192,25 was paid out, or 51.125% of advertised prizes based on 200 full entries.

One of my favorite moves against the French
2...Ne7

It really surprised me, first time I see this move, but we can transpose to other main lines. Now 2...c5 3.g3 Nc6 4.Bg2 g6 5.c3 Bg7 6.d3 Nge7 7.f4 is a typical closed Sicilian.
3.g3 d5 4.d3 c5 5.Bg2 Nbc6 6.Nf3 Ng6?!

Dubious move. More natural is 6...g6 7.0-0 Bg7 8.e5 0-0 9.h4 h6 10.Re1 b6 11.Bf4 Bb7 12.Nbd2 with a common line in the KI Attack.
7.h4!?

As Alekhine taught us in his games, this move disturbs the knight on g6. After this move, is not easy find a good continuation for Black.
7...dxe4 8.dxe4 Nge5?!

A waste of time, because after normal moves White will get a comfortable and dominating position. Bet ter is 8...Nd4! 9.Nxd4 cxd4 10.h5 Ne5 with the idea of d3 or Nc6, to get some counterplay in the center.

9.Nxe5 Nxe5 10.0-0 Be7 11.Rd1 Qb6 12.Na3!

With the idea of going to get the d6 weak square.

12...0-0 13.c3 a6 14.f4!

Continuing with the previous plan. Other option was 14.Bf4 Ng6 15.Bd6 Bxd6 16.Nc4 Qb5 17.a4! Qe8 18.Nxd6 Qe7 19.e5± with clear positional advantage.

14...Nc6 15.Nc4 Qc7 16.e5±

After this move, White completed his mission successfully. The bishop on g2 will be the main weapon to destroy black fortress.

18...Bxd6? 19.exd6 Rxd6 20.Rxd6 Qxd6 21.Rd1! Qc7 22.Bxc6.

19.a4 Rb8 20.axb5 axb5 21.Nxc8!

A hard decision, because I have to trade my strong knight on d6 for an undeveloped bishop. But the control of the light squares and open a-file are decisive factors in the game.

21...Rbxc8 22.Ra6 Rxd1+ 23.Qxd1 Na5 24.Ra7 Qd8 25.Qxd8+ Bxd8

Everything was forced. Now White has to find a continuation to exploit the poor coordination of the black pieces.

1.e4 c5 2.Nf3 e6 3.d4 cxd4 4.Nxd4 a6 This is the Kan Sicilian, which I have played for a long time. My coach also plays this. 5.Nc3 b5 6.Be2 Bb7 7.a3 stopping b4 7...d6 8.0-0 Nf6 9.Bf3 Nbd7 10.Bg5 Be7 11.Qd2 Ne5 This prepares Nc4, which forces Black to defend the queenside. 12.Rfe1 0-0 13.Rad1 White piles up on the d-file. 13...Rc8 14.Qe2 My opponent gets his queen out of the way of Nc4. 14...Qc7 15.Bc1 This protects the b2 pawn after Nc4, but it doesn't stop Nxa3 15...Nc4 16.Bg4 This gives up the bishop pair. My opponent was probably trying to get an attack. 16...Nxc4 17.Qxc4 Nxa3 Finally taking the pawn. 18.Bh6 Bf6 19.bxa3 Qxc3 20.Re3 Qc5 21.Rg3 It seems White has a big attack. 21...g6 here I missed [21...Bxd4 22.Bxg7 (22.Rxd4 Qxd4 23.Bxg7 f5) 22...Bxf2+ 23.Kh1 h5 24.Qf4 Bxg3 25.Qxg3 if (25.Qh6 then 25...f6 26.Bxf8 Qg5) 25...Kh7] 22.Nxe6 if he took my rook, then Bxd4 wins 22...fxe6 23.Bxf8 Rxf8 24.Qxe6+ Kg7 25.Rgd3 Qe5 Be5 was better 26.Rxd6 Qxe6 27.Rxe6 I traded off into an endgame where I had two bishops for a rook. 27...Bc8 28.Rc6 Be5 29.Rc5 Bb8 30.Rd3 Bb7 31.e5 Rf7 32.c4? This is a blunder, and allows Ba7. It is understandable however, since we were both in time pressure. 32...Ba7 33.e6 a last attempt 33...Bxc5 34.exf7 bxc4 35.Rd7 c3 36.Rc7 If Rxb7 I can just push and queen. 36...Bxa3 37.Rxc3

Bf8 38.Rc7 Bd5 39.Ra7 Bc4 40.f3 Here he made a blunder in time pressure that cost him the game 40...Bc5+ 41.Kh1 Bxa7 42.g3 Kxf7 0-1

Dachey Lin, con'td from p. 21

I was losing in the endgame so badly that I had to exchange queens, but then his dangerous passed pawn went to d2 so my rook had to protect his threats of promoting a queen. He used his rook to try to make my rook take his piece so he could promote his queen, but I did not take it. Instead, I blocked his pawn with my rook, hoping that my king would come in time to capture his passed pawn, but unfortunately, his other pawn protected his pawn. I tried to defend using my king to stop his pawn but unfortunately his pawn check on c2 made me resign because if I took the pawn on d2 with my king, then his rook would go to b1. If at that time my rook took the rook on b1, then his c2 pawn would take it and promote into a queen. If I moved my rook away, his c2 pawn would go to c1 and promote into a queen and check my king. I did not win but felt good that I got the 18th place in the standings, since it could have been worse.

The closing ceremony was great. It felt like it was time to say goodbye to everyone around the world. This time 1st-6th place all got medals but only 1st-3rd got trophies. I was happy because the US team did very well. I hope it does better next time.

Flight back to Texas

When we went back, we flew from Antalya via Istanbul, London, and Chicago to Texas. It was fun in Turkey, but I also feel good back to Texas
